Description

As today's business world becomes more competitive and customers needs more complex, manufacturers are looking for ways to enhance their existing capabilities. Through a series of strategic business moves, Rockwell has been able to do just that. Since its acquisition of Allen-Bradley in 1985, Rockwell has made substantial investments in order to add other leading brands to the fold. Brands that now work under the banner of Rockwell Automation. Allen-Bradley stands for quality, that's why we chose for this brand.
